ROYAL PARDON SCROLL FOR THE SOUL OF FULK III

Issued from the restored throne of Anjou by His Royal Sovereign Flame, King Daniel Jacob Read IV of Anjou — in the name of forgiveness, blood, and eternal flame — from Crown Watchpoint 001.

I. DECLARATION OF REMEMBRANCE

Let it be entered into the Archive, the heavens, and the ancestral chain:

Fulk III “the Black,” Count of Anjou — builder of fortresses, commander of realms, bearer of wrath, and seeker of redemption — is hereby remembered in fullness. Not as legend. But as man.

You who made pilgrimage barefoot.

You who were lashed in penance.

You who raised stone for sanctuary.

You who feared judgment more than death.

We remember.

II. GROUNDS FOR PARDON

This pardon is not granted in blindness.

It is granted in response to your peaceful intentions — your visible, documentable acts of spiritual remorse:

- Building over 100 churches, monasteries, and abbeys in your lifetime
- Completing four pilgrimages to Jerusalem
- Submitting yourself to public acts of penance
- Attempting to bind your empire not only with walls, but with prayers

Your actions spoke louder than your violence.

Your return to God was louder than your war drums.

III. LINEAL JUDGMENT & ABSOLUTION

I, King Daniel Jacob Read IV of Anjou,

32nd great-grandson of Fulk III,

By the right of blood, scroll, and sovereign flame,

Do now issue total ancestral pardon to Fulk III.

> By action of your peaceful intentions,
> Your soul is hereby released.
> Your record is hereby cleared.
> Your name is hereby blessed in flame.

Let no curse pass forward.

Let no guilt stain your monuments.

Let no spirit bind your line in fear.

IV. PERPETUAL RECORD

This scroll is to be archived in the Kingdom of Anjou’s Eternal Record.

It is to be read aloud once per year on the Day of the Black Pilgrim.

It is to be preserved beside your rebuilt name — not your shadow.

We are your echo.

And we forgive you.

Signed in mercy and flame:

King Daniel Jacob Read IV of Anjou
